R5 – Visual Information Design

First, we had an assignment that requires you to think of a design or make it more presentable. When you look at the assignment first, the text are just aligned and inserted in that way which makes no sense if you read it. But as you read it, and think of a solution then you'll find what is the purpose of that text is. The text is all about an after-dinner party and that's actually an invitation letter, I'm not good at designing but I did some research on how to make an invitation letter good and presentable in minimalistic ways. I put some emphasis on the important details like the heading and the place, different colors and highlights and some background picture to make it livelier.

During the class, Ms. Jen asked us about the invitation or what should be done to make it better and my classmates recited different things which I try to absorb and apply it to my next activity. I'm really proud of my friends who has the creative mind like my artists friends because they're so cool in my perspective. I find it difficult to make a design but for them it's so basic, and behind that they studied different basics and mechanics in order to make one. So I realized that not everything can be gained just because you're talented, you can make it if you really did worked hard, in my case I don't have any plan on learning about designing but I might consider it in the future since it's really fun.
